Discovering of NEW! amazing Croatia Itinerary 26

Wine & Gourmet tour of Dubrovnik,
Pelješac peninsula and island Korčula
4 days / 3 nights

Having visited Dubrovnik, the Irish writer George Bernard Shaw wrote: "Those who are looking for paradise on Earth should come and see Dubrovnik". Unique for its impressive medieval forts, churches, monuments and palaces, Dubrovnik is often called the pearl of the Adriatic. More than a thousand-year old history of Dubrovnik made it a cultural centre of Europe. Initially a small community, the city flourished in no time and became the seat of the independent Dubrovnik Republic. The Republic mastered the art of seafaring and created a fleet on the South Adriatic which could be compared to the one owned by Venice in the north. History is present in the entire city, which is both a museum and a picturesque stage where meet the cultural heritage and the contemporary life. All houses and monuments have a unique value. The Old Town is encompassed by the medieval walls, which have been preserved in its original form and are open for visitors as Dubrovnik's major sight. In 1979 year Dubrovnik was included on the UNESCO World Heritage List.

DAY 1, DUBROVNIK

A short ride from the border between Croatia and Montenegro. Lunch. Accommodation at the hotel according to arrival time. Sightseeing tour of Dubrovnik including the Franciscan and Dominican monasteries, the Rector's Palace and the Cathedral. We will tour the City Walls with its magnificent fortresses and towers. Free time for spending time in many cafes along the streets. Dinner and overnight stay.

PELJEŠAC PENINSULA

In an hour's drive north of the marbled streets of Dubrovnik, the Pelješac peninsula extends roughly 40 miles out into the Adriatic covered in the pine forest, olive trees, figs, herbs, and head-trained vines planted in extreme, steep, rocky soils. Vineyards are planted almost exclusively to the rugged native grape variety Plavac Mali. Grapevines have been adorning the southern slopes of the Pelješac peninsula on the Dalmatian Coast since the beginning of mankind. The Plavac Mali grape variety thrives remarkably well in such sunny Karst soil and this is where the king of Croatian red wines, Dingač, dwells. The ancient wine culture of Croatia is the origin of the most famous American Zinfandel grape. Here is your chance to taste a top-quality original.

DAY 2, DUBROVNIK - PELJEŠAC PENINSULA - DUBROVNIK

Breakfast. Taking a cable car above Dubrovnik. Spectacular views of the Old Town and the surrounding area will take your breath away. Returning to the Old Town. Taking off to Pelješac. A short stop at Ston which used to be a major fort of the Ragusan Republic whose defensive walls were regarded as a notable feat of medieval architecture. The city's inner walls measure 890 meters in length, while the Great Wall outside of the city has a circumference of 5 km. The walls extend to Mali Ston, a smaller town on the northern side of the Pelješac isthmus and the end of the Bay of Mali Ston, notable for its mariculture. Ston is also known for its salt works which were run by the Republic of Ragusa and the Ottoman Empire. Lunch. Setting-off to a winery.

The first stop is at Vinifera winery at a small place called Ponikve. Grape and wine production in Ponikve on Pelješac has been a tradition of Miloš family for generations that base the production on the autochthonous Plavac Mali grape. In hues, the colours pour through the glass of reflecting shades in motion. In their layers, they speak narrate, whispering of times of hardship. Down the glass rims, tender and slow tears arise as if from a different world they derive, slowly they descend, slide, close the circle, talking.

The next stop is Winery Grgić. Grgić wines was established in 1996 by a legendary Napa Valley winemaker, Croatian-born Miljenko "Mike" Grgich, his daughter, Violet Grgić and his nephew Ivo Jeramaz. Being dedicated to the art of winemaking, Mike started the winery to produce the finest wines from native Dalmatian grapes. He had concentrated on crafting Croatia's very best varietals: Plavac Mali (red wine) and Pošip (white wine). The winery is located in Trstenik on the Pelješac peninsula, with a stunning view over the Mediterranean Sea, north of the historic walls of the port of Dubrovnik, in the Southern wine region of Croatia. Although Miljenko has received many gold medals and the highest possible accolades for his California-made-wines, those dearest and the most meaningful to him are the ones he received for his Pošip and Plavac Mali in Croatia.

Our last stop of the day is Saints Hills Winery. The Adriatic Sea with Saints Hills' vineyards is a stone thrown away from Dubrovnik, and two from Diocletian's Palace in Split and Vespasian's Amphitheatre in Pula. Here we celebrate the sea and the sun, Istria and Dalmatia, the Bora and the Sirocco, the stone and the wine. And through this little window in the house, amid Dingač vineyards, you can see the millennial path of the holy liquid wine, from the Greek amphorae that carried it through the canal, to the wooden trabaccoli that carried it to Split. Following a path on both sides of the Pelješac peninsula, all the way to Istria, we set forth in search of perfection.

The first place in Croatia to be recognized in 1961, as an appellation with „Protected Geographical Origin“. The autochthonous variety Plavac Mali has been producing the best wines for centuries. From the vineyards you can view Mljet island, and you can sense Dubrovnik close by, with the deep blue sea on the horizon, undulating all the way to Italy. It is as if you are observing the path that Plavac Mali's "ancestor" had traversed, coming to Italy as Primitivo, only to set forth over the Atlantic to become Zinfandel. Dingač has its own particular path, carved through the mountain by the winegrowers, linking the vineyards to the port of Trstenik. From here, the first wines left for Europe. Dingač has always been the authentic heart of Croatian winemaking. St. Lucia is the authentic Dingač. Returning to Dubrovnik after wine tasting. Dinner and overnight stay.

KORČULA ISLAND

Rich in vineyards, olive groves and small villages, and harboring a glorious Old town, Korčula island is the sixth-largest Adriatic island stretching nearly 47 km in length. The dense woods led the original Greek settlers to call the island Korkyra Melaina (Black Korčula). Quiet coves and small sandy beaches dot the steep southern coast while the northern shore is flatter and pebblier. Tradition is alive and kicking on Korčula with age-old religious ceremonies, folk music and dances still being performed to an ever-growing influx of tourists. Arguably the best of all Croatian white wine is produced from Pošip grapes, which are only grown here and to a lesser extent on the Pelješac peninsula. Grk grape is cultivated around Lumbarda, also produces quality dry white wine.

DAY 3, DUBROVNIK - KORČULA ISLAND - DUBROVNIK

Breakfast. Start our trip in direction of Island Korčula. First stop is Winery Korta Katarina. Korta Katarina (KK), Southern Croatian winery and its villa "Rivijera Orebić" are a wine lover's dream. It is the first venue of its kind in Southern Croatia. The winery, the villa and the vineyards are perched on the edge of the crystal-clear Adriatic sea and provide breathtaking views of Croatia's Dalmatian Coast. Considered one of the most stunning coastlines in the world, the Dalmatian Coasts Dingač and Postup, the regions of the Pelješac peninsula and the region of Cara on Korčula Island produce Korta Katarina's award-winning Plavac Mali, Reuben's Reserve Plavac Mali, Pošip and Rose wines. The Korta Katarina estate is located in a small coastal Orebić town, a region renowned for its culture, seaports and winemaking traditions that date back to the Roman Empire. For centuries, "kortas" were the center of family gatherings for sea captains and sailors embarking on worldly adventures. After the wine tasting we proceed to Korčula Island by ferry. Korčula Island - a born place of famous sailor and explorer Marco Polo invites people to explore the birth place of this famous sailor. Visiting Marco Polo museum and born house of Marco Polo. Lunch and trip to Zure Winery at Lumbarda.

GRK WINE

Grk wine is famous wine of Lumbarda and one of the synonyms of this beautiful Dalmatian village. There is probably no wine lover or connoisseur in Croatia who doesn't know where this unique white wine comes from and where it is mostly cultivated.

However, it is also interesting to know that among all the wine specialists, there is still no sound agreement whether this particular three vowel name come from this wine's taste, the origins of the first grapes brought to Lumbarda, or eventually from both of those elements that tell us already much about Grk wine itself. Grk means bitter in Croatian, and Grk is Greek(s) who were the first known to produce wine on this part of Korčula Island. Therefore, keeping in mind that the tradition of winemaking in this region started with Greek colonies a few centuries BC and that inhabitants of Lumbarda from the early beginning, as Croats in general, also have a very long tradition in winemaking it would then be a huge mistake to place Croatia on the map of the "New World" wine countries. The long tradition was however put in danger at the beginning of 20th century and production was seriously affected, like in most part of Europe, by the attack of a little pest known as grape phylloxera. Luckily for one part of Lumbarda's vineyards, phylloxera proved to be less harmful and this mainly goes for the grapes planted in sandy soil in central part of the village. However, some of the vineyards on the southern slopes of Korčula Island, with almost perfect condition for winemaking, perished the most and were abandoned for decades. Today the situation is changing in a good way and the very suitable land for the winemaking that was forgotten for more than a half of a century, is getting in focus again. The southern slopes of Korčula Island will very probably give again what Grk likes the most: excellent soil, a lot of sun and, temperature stability under the influence of the nearby sea.

The last stop of our wine tour is Winery Toreta at Smokvica village. This winery offers high-quality indigenous wines Pošip and Rukatac and dessert Prosecco wine. # Discovering of NEW! amazing Croatia Itinerary 27

Wine & Gourmet tour of Dubrovnik,
Pelješac peninsula, island Korčula
and Slovenia
6 days / 5 nights

Having visited Dubrovnik, the Irish writer George Bernard Shaw wrote: "Those who seek paradise on Earth should come to Dubrovnik". Unique for its impressive medieval forts, churches, monuments and palaces, Dubrovnik is often called the pearl of the Adriatic. More than a thousand-year old history of Dubrovnik made it a cultural center of Europe. Initially a small community, the city flourished in no time and became the seat of the independent Dubrovnik Republic. The Republic mastered the art of seafaring and created a fleet on the South Adriatic which could be compared to the one owned by Venice in the north. History is present in the entire city, which is both a museum and a picturesque stage where cultural heritage and contemporary life meet. All houses and monuments have a unique value. The Old City is encompassed by medieval walls, which have been preserved in their original form and opened for visitors as Dubrovnik's major attraction. In 1979 year the city was included on UNESCO World Heritage Site List.

DAY 1, DUBROVNIK

A short ride from the border between Croatia and Montenegro. Lunch. Check-in at the hotel. Sightseeing tour of Dubrovnik including the Franciscan and Dominican monasteries, the Rector's Palace and the Cathedral. We will tour the City Walls with its magnificent fortresses and towers. Free time for enjoying in many cafes along the streets. Dinner and overnight stay.

PELJEŠAC PENINSULA

An hour's drive north of the marbled streets of Dubrovnik, the Pelješac peninsula extends roughly 40 miles out into the Adriatic covered in the pine forest, olive trees, figs, herbs, and head-trained vines planted in extreme, steep, rocky soils. Vineyards are planted almost exclusively to the rugged native grape variety Plavac Mali. Grapevines have been adorning the southern slopes of the Pelješac peninsula on the Dalmatian Coast since the beginning of mankind. The Plavac Mali grape variety thrives remarkably well in such sunny Karst soil and this is where the king of Croatian red wines, Dingač, dwells. The ancient wine culture of Croatia is the origin of the most famous American Zinfandel grape. Here is your chance to taste a top-quality original.

DAY 2, DUBROVNIK - PELJEŠAC - DUBROVNIK

Breakfast. Taking a cable car above Dubrovnik. Spectacular views of the Old Town and the surrounding area will take your breath away. Returning to the Old Town. Taking off to Pelješac. A short stop at Ston which used to be a major fort of the Ragusan Republic whose defensive walls were regarded as a notable feat of medieval architecture. The city's inner walls measure 890 meters in length, while the Great Wall outside of the city has a circumference of 5 km. The walls extend to Mali Ston, a smaller town on the northern side of the Pelješac isthmus and the end of the Bay of Mali Ston, notable for its mariculture. Ston is also known for its salt works which were run by the Republic of Ragusa and the Ottoman Empire. Lunch. Setting-off to a winery.

The first stop is at Vinifera winery at a small place called Ponikve. Grape and wine production in Ponikve on Pelješac has been a tradition of Miloš family for generations that base the production on the autochthonous Plavac Mali grape. In hues, the colours pour through the glass of reflecting shades in motion. In their layers, they speak narrate, whispering of times of hardship. Down the glass rims, tender and slow tears arise as if from a different world they derive, slowly they descend, slide, close the circle, talking.

The next stop is Winery Grgić. Grgić wines was established in 1996 by a legendary Napa Valley winemaker, Croatian-born Miljenko "Mike" Grgich, his daughter, Violet Grgić and his nephew Ivo Jeramaz. Being dedicated to the art of winemaking, Mike started the winery to produce the finest wines from native Dalmatian grapes. He had concentrated on crafting Croatia's very best varietals: Plavac Mali (red wine) and Pošip (white wine). The winery is located in Trstenik on the Pelješac peninsula, with a stunning view over the Mediterranean Sea, north of the historic walls of the port of Dubrovnik, in the Southern wine region of Croatia. Although Miljenko has received many gold medals and the highest possible accolades for his California-made-wines, those dearest and the most meaningful to him are the ones he received for his Pošip and Plavac Mali in Croatia.

Our last stop of the day is Saints Hills Winery. The Adriatic Sea with Saints Hills' vineyards is a stone thrown away from Dubrovnik, and two from Diocletian's Palace in Split and Vespasian's Amphitheatre in Pula. Here we celebrate the sea and the sun, Istria and Dalmatia, the Bora and the Sirocco, the stone and the wine. And through this little window in the house, amid Dingač vineyards, you can see the millennial path of the holy liquid wine, from the Greek amphorae that carried it through the canal, to the wooden trabaccoli that carried it to Split. Following a path on both sides of the Pelješac peninsula, all the way to Istria, we set forth in search of perfection.

The first place in Croatia to be recognized in 1961, as an appellation with „Protected Geographical Origin“. The autochthonous variety Plavac Mali has been producing the best wines for centuries. From the vineyards you can view Mljet island, and you can sense Dubrovnik close by, with the deep blue sea on the horizon, undulating all the way to Italy. It is as if you are observing the path that Plavac Mali's "ancestor" had traversed, coming to Italy as Primitivo, only to set forth over the Atlantic to become Zinfandel. Dingač has its own particular path, carved through the mountain by the winegrowers, linking the vineyards to the port of Trstenik. From here, the first wines left for Europe. Dingač has always been the authentic heart of Croatian winemaking. St. Lucia is the authentic Dingač. Returning to Dubrovnik after wine tasting. Dinner and overnight stay.

KORČULA ISLAND

Rich in vineyards, olive groves and small villages, and harboring a glorious Old town, Korčula island is the sixth-largest Adriatic island stretching nearly 47 km in length. The dense woods led the original Greek settlers to call the island Korkyra Melaina (Black Korčula). Quiet coves and small sandy beaches dot the steep southern coast while the northern shore is flatter and pebblier. Tradition is alive and kicking on Korčula with age-old religious ceremonies, folk music and dances still being performed to an ever-growing influx of tourists. Arguably the best of all Croatian white wine is produced from Pošip grapes, which are only grown here and to a lesser extent on the Pelješac peninsula. Grk grape is cultivated around Lumbarda, also produces quality dry white wine.

DAY 3, DUBROVNIK - KORČULA ISLAND - DUBROVNIK

Breakfast. Start our trip in direction of Island Korčula. First stop is Winery Korta Katarina. The Korta Katarina (KK) Southern Croatian winery and its villa "Rivijera Orebić" are a wine lover's dream. The first venue of its kind in Southern Croatia, the winery, villa and vineyards are perched on the edge of the crystal-clear Adriatic Sea and provide breathtaking views of Croatia's Dalmatian Coast. Considered one of the most stunning coastlines in the world, the Dalmatian Coasts Dingač and Postup regions of the Pelješac peninsula and the region of Cara, on the Island of Korčula, produce Korta Katarina's award winning Plavac Mali, Reuben's Reserve Plavac Mali, Pošip and Rose wines. The Korta Katarina estate is located in the small coastal town of Orebić, a region renowned for its culture, seaports and winemaking traditions that date back to the Roman Empire. For centuries, 'kortas' were the center of family gatherings for sea captains and sailors embarking on worldly adventures. After the wine testing we proceed to Island Korčula by ferry. Korčula island - born place of famous sailor and explorer Marco Polo invites people to explore born place of this famous sailor. Visit Marco Polo museum and born house of Marco Polo. Lunch. Proceeding our trip to Winery Zure at Lumbarda.

GRK WINE

Grk wine is famous wine of Lumbarda and one of the synonyms of this beautiful Dalmatian village. There is probably no wine lover or connoisseur in Croatia who doesn't know where this unique white wine comes from and where it is mostly cultivated. However, it is also interesting to know that among all the wine specialists, there is still no sound agreement whether this particular three vowel name come from this wine's taste, the origins of the first grapes brought to Lumbarda, or eventually from both of those elements that tell us already much about Grk wine itself. Grk means bitter in Croatian, and Grk is Greek(s) who were the first known to produce wine on this part of Korčula Island. Therefore, keeping in mind that the tradition of winemaking in this region started with Greek colonies a few centuries BC and that inhabitants of Lumbarda from the early beginning, as Croatians in general, also have a very long tradition in winemaking it would then be a huge mistake to place Croatia on the map of the "New World" wine countries. The long tradition was however put in danger at the beginning of 20th century and production was seriously affected, like in most part of Europe, by the attack of a little pest known as grape phylloxera. Luckily for one part of Lumbarda's vineyards, phylloxera proved to be less harmful and this mainly goes for the grapes planted in sandy soil in central part of the village. However, some of the vineyards on the southern slopes of Korčula Island, with almost perfect condition for winemaking, perished the most and were abandoned for decades. Today the situation is changing in a good way and the very suitable land for the winemaking that was forgotten for more than a half of a century, is getting in focus again. The southern slopes of Korčula Island will very probably give again what Grk likes the most: excellent soil, a lot of sun and, temperature stability under the influence of the nearby sea.

The last stop of our wine tour is Winery Toreta at Smokvica village. This winery offers high-quality indigenous wines Pošip and Rukatac and dessert Prosecco wine. In addition to wine tasting and traditional dishes, you can visit the traditionally regulated area an enviable collection of equipment for viticulture and wine. Returning to Dubrovnik. Dinner and overnight stay.

DAY 4, DUBROVNIK - ZAGREB - LJUBLJANA

Breakfast. Flight Dubrovnik - Zagreb. Lunch. Short sightseeing of Zagreb and departing for Ljubljana. Dinner and overnight stay.

DAY 5, LJUBLJANA - SEŽANA - VIPAVA - GORIŠKA BRDA - LJUBLJANA

Breakfast. A ride to Sežana. The first stop is The Vinakras Winery. Within centuries Karst people wanted to produce good grapes that they had to adapt. They had to be standing against the bora wind and to collect every drop of water during the days of draught. A special kind of grape is the Vitovska which protects itself from water loss thanks to strong skin. These grapes used to be picked in the end of September and on Easter, as it was exposed to the bora. The grapes dried slow and remained healthy. It lost 90% of its weight and maintained only the best. A testimony, that the Vita 2010 is something special is the very way it pours into a glass. It is thick and sounds deep during pouring. It is wonderful to observe its bright orange shades. It reminds us of sunny autumn days, like the colour of the days of a good grape harvest. As it encounters the glass, we smell dried apricots, fig marmalade and white rum. It is an even greater pleasure to taste it. Thickness and strength warm the taste buds. It has a gentle, creamy and mature effect. The dry grape skins have left its freshness and pleasant tannins, which make the taste so soft and harmonic. Vita is a good match for classic apple pie which can be spiced with a bit of honey.

The next stop is at Vipava Winery that was founded in 1894 at Vipava valley. Between the Karst and the Trnovo forest spreads a wide Vipava Valley, known for its mild climate and rich soil composition (marl), which gives the local wines gentle, elegant and quite persistent bouquet. The tastes of wines are harmonious, elegant, delicate, fruit pleasing with low alcohol. The valley is planted with over 2300 hectares of vineyards. Here are the naturally given, ideal conditions for the growth of the following grape varieties: Ribolla, Riesling, Chardonnay, Sauvignon, Green, Pinot Gris, Muscat, Malvasia, Merlot, Cabernet Sauvignon, Barbera and other less-represented sorts. Modern technology and numerous awards given to these wines are the guarantee for their quality. The grape vine has been cultivated in the area of Vipava since the time of ancient Romans. Some sources state that the Roman writer Pliny the Elder describes the noble Vipava wine in his work. At that time an important traffic vein from Italy to Pannonia led through the Vipava valley. In the middle ages, Morelli writes about the act of the County of Gorica to protect Vipava wine in Carinthia and other Austrian countries, so that Italian wine would not be sold under that name. The development of viticulture in Carniola is described by Janez Vajkard Valvasor in the 17th century in his book "The Glory of the Duchy of Carniola".

The most thorough description of grape growing in the Vipava region has been provided in the middle of the 19th century by the known countryman of Vipava, the priest Matija Vertovec, the author of the first Slovenian book on grape growing and winemaking - Winemaking for Slovenians, which was published in the 1844. He had approached grape growing with a critical, exploratory demeanor and attempted to explain as understanding terms as possible to simple grape growers, to explain how they should cultivate the vineyards in given conditions to achieve optimal results. His work is considered a lasting contribution to Slovenian culture. Viticulture in the Vipava valley ascribes its great importance in 1894 year when the winegrowers of Vipava founded the first wine cellar in Slovenia, which was registered as the Vipava Wine Cooperative. The history of this Cooperative is very colourful, as it has survived two world wars and Italian occupation. In these turbulent times, the Cooperative operated without interruptions.

The last stop is at Winery Bjana, Goriška Brda area. Brda hills, where about six thousand inhabitants arranged its houses, grouped in villages, which normally have a church in the heart of them, are slowly descending towards the south to the Friuli plain. Here opens a new horizon by nice warm weather where the sea fertilizes the soil on flysch ground with its pleasant Mediterranean climate. Excellent weather conditions and the working hands of the local people, produce countless juicy cherry fruit, peaches, apricots, olives, figs, chestnuts, and finally the grapes that ripen at Saint Martin into sweet wine. Brda is a land imbued with a rich history and interesting events in the present. On the way from village to village, we meet with a rich natural and cultural heritage. Brda is a land of castles and churches, mostly white, at the top of hills, there are almost 30 of them preserved. „Bjana“ is the name for our village Biljana in the local dialect. Bjana wines are produced and matured on a family estate in the heart of the Goriška Brda winegrowing district, which lies on Alpine foothills with a strong Mediterranean influence. Our wines mature in the fully restored Chateau Dorišče, home to one of the oldest cellars far and wide. Returning to Ljubljana. Dinner and overnight stay.

DAY 6, LJUBLJANA - BLED - BELGRADE

Breakfast. Sightseeing of Ljubljana – the Robba Fountain, the Triple Bridge, the Cathedral of St. Nicholas, the City Square. The tour ends with a funicular ride to Ljubljana Castle which departs from Krekov Square. Proceeding our trip to Bled. Lunch. Sightseeing of Bled. With immense natural beauty Bled with its surroundings ranks among the most beautiful Alpine resorts renowned for its mild, healing climate and the lake with thermal water.
